DUTY ON BLASKETS.

Christ, Jay & Hess agt Angustus Schell.

This action, which was co-cuded to-day, was brought to recover the difference between the duties of fifteen and twenty-four per cent, which latter rate had been exacted by the C liector upon an invoice of certain manufactures of wool, atyled in the entry and invoice Gendan blankers. He arriff act of 1846 arranged articles in schedules. In schedule C 'manufactures of wool not otherwise provided for 'were charged with a duty of thirty per cent; and in schedule E, 'blankets of all kinds' were charged with a duty of twenty per cent.

The Tariff act of 1857, reducing the duty on imports, provides that the articles enumerated in schedule C of the Tariff act of 1816, should, after July 1, 1857, pay a duty of twanty-four, intend of thirty per cent, and those commerated in schedule E should, after the same date, pay afteen instead of twenty per stead of thirty per cent, and those counteraised in someonies should, after the same date, pay lifeen instead of twenty per cent.

The plaintiffs contended that they were entitled to enter the goods in question at the rate of 15 per cent, and submitted that the question to be die died was, whether the articles in question were blankets, as commercially known, at the date of the taniff at of 1657, and showed that this senct question, between the same plaintiffs and the Collector of the Port of Philadelphia, had been trued in two cases in the United States Circuit Court in that city within ten days, and that Judge Grier, after hearing coursel at length on the point, and deliberately decided that the Taniff act of 1657 was a distinct act, and wholly independent of the set of 1846; and that in district act, and wholly independent of the act of 1846; and that in district act, and wholly independent of the act of 1846; and that in district act, and wholly independent of the action in question should pay, the Jury were to laquite by what name they were known in commerce at or before the passage of the Tariff act of 1857, whoo at any retrease to the name they were known in dominate that decision of Judge Grier, Judge Ni-leson Beled this '9' the r-land been ay no construction of the tariff act of 1846 by the of 1877, that the latter act did not change the legal operation of the farmer, but operated as a more reduction of the duttes provided for in it; that the plaintiff must, therefore, confine their testimony to a time at and previous to the passage of the tariff act of 1846.

The plaintiffs then called the or six witnesses, merchants and clottlers, to prove that the articles in question were commercially known as blankets prior to the act of 1846.

The winnesses on the part of the Government testified that the article in question become the produced in please of their or fourly yards, and after that the inticle in question become the manufacture of overcoats.
